POLY WALL WORKS MOUNTAIN OUTREACH PROJECT

Poly Wall® Building Solutions proudly participated in the University of the Cumberlands Mountain Outreach program in Kentucky this week.

Dan Thomas, business development manager for Poly Wall, said the project fits the mold of what Poly Wall is all about.

“This program fits perfectly with our company’s mission,” Thomas said. “These Christian students work hard to give back to the community and we’re just proud to be a small part of that project.”

The Cumberland Mountain Outreach Program is a faith-based 501(c) 3 organization based in the heart of the Appalachian region of Eastern Kentucky. As part of the project, the students involved work on a residential construction projects helping to build, renovate or repair homes in need through their volunteer service.

This year Poly Wall was asked to donate materials and training/labor for the project. Poly Wall’s Blue Barrier line of weatherproofing products were used on the exterior of the home and windows to provide a solid air barrier and window and door waterproofing system.
